AS BIRMINGHAM GOES, SO GOES THE NATION.

By Vickii Howell
Editor-in-Chief/Producer
BirminghamView.com

The year 1963 was an extraordinary 365 days. In that year, the long-simmering passions among African Americans and their supporters to win civil and human rights exploded in a season of unprecedented change across the nation. Birmingham was the spark that set it off 50 years ago.

Without Birmingham, there might not have been a March on Washington, a stand against a governor in the schoolhouse door, nor a humbled president who began writing laws that finally assured civil rights for all citizens.

The City of Birmingham, its citizens and special guests spent the year remembering the past and looking forward as they commemorated the 50th anniversary of the historic 1963 Birmingham Movement.

City's Empowerment Week Looks 50 Years Forward

By Vickii Howell
Editor-in-Chief
BirminghamView.com

The City of Birmingham honored the past, yet looked 50 Years Forward in official events commemorating the 50th anniversary of the 1963 Birmingham Civil Rights Movement.

The week kicked off on Sept. 11 with a free special concert organized by Trinity Broadcasting Network, featuring actor / songwriter Clifton Davis and award-winning gospel singer Donnie McClurkin. Special included Rev. Bernice King, daughter of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., CeeCee Winans and attorney Willie Gary.

Birmingham Mayor William Bell hosted colleagues from the U.S.

Conference of Mayors, who held a symposium at Sixteenth Street Baptist Church. They announced a plan that the group would endorse and use to address continuing civil rights issues, lingering racism, poverty and inequality.

Other events during Empowerment Week featured Spike Lee and a screening ➤ of his 1997 HBO documentary, "Four Little Girls." It explored the tragically short lives of Denise McNair, Addie Mae Collins, Carole Robertson and Cynthia Wesley, and the impact their deaths had on Birmingham, on Alabama and the nation. Lee dedicated his award from city officials to the Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth, the fiery and ultra-courageous local leader of the Birmingham Movement, and his widow, Sephira, his second wife.

Former U.S. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice, who was also a co-chair of Empowerment Week, made several appearances in Birmingham during commemorative events. One included an intimate conversation with current U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder at the University of Alabama at Birmingham. Their conversation came before a special showing of Christina Hamm's play "Four Little Girls at the Alys Stephens Center."

Holder also spoke at a special commemorative service at Sixteenth Street Baptist Church with other guests on the 50th anniversary of the church's bombing. Holder, his wife Sharon (whose sister Vivian confronted Gov. George Wallace who tried to block her entrance into the University of Alabama with James Hood) and other officials including Gov. Robert Bentley, viewed a new memorial sculpture at Kelly Ingram Park honoring the Four Little Girls.

Earlier in that week, Birmingham-born sculptor Elizabeth

MacQueen oversaw the installation of the bronze and steel memorial at the northwest corner of the park across from Sixteenth Street Baptist. A group of citizens formed the Four Spirits Committee raised funds to finally create a fitting tribute to the girls killed in the bombing and recognize two boys -- Virgil Ware and Johnny Robinson -- who were also killed on Sept. 15, 1963 in separate racially-motivated incidents.

A small sampling of the many events that took place during Empowerment Week include: a series of panel discussions about the state of civil rights and the African American community, particularly one organized by entertainer Bill Cosby; an international street fair honoring Birmingham's impact on the world; a play based on the work of bomb survivor Carolyn McKinstry; and an all-star tribute concert featuring Jamie Foxx, Charlie Wilson and Jill Scott.

City officials say they plan to make Empowerment Week an annual event in Birmingham.

THE CLASSIC WEEKEND
EVENT GUIDE

Wil's Fashion 101 Guide

By W. N. Walker, PR
The Life and Style Enthusiast

It has become apparent to me and all of the "style" community that someone needs to intervene on behalf of better taste. This is W. N. Walker's "Do's and Don't" Fashion and lifestyle commentary for 2013

DONT's

Tights: Contrary to popular culture, they are OUT! The teacher says "Stop it!"

Neon Colors: Less is more. Yes, thick can mean cute in African American culture, but it is absolutely NOT cute when you're carrying wide loads! Some things don't need to be enhanced.

Sneaker Wedges: This is the ultimate in hood and completely the worst interpretation of a high heel. Ladies, stop being lazy and get a real heel.

Sagging: MEN. Stop. It!!! In jail parlance, when you sag, it's a sign that the "door" is open. This has become a disgusting trend and needs to be stopped, and not just by the fashion police. Sagging will never get you a job or even a hamburger if your pants are down in the wrong situations.

Fake Handbags: Ladies, I know we're in a recession, but please, just say NO to the fakery. It's better to have to one quality bag than 15 tragic ones. In the end, you pay the same price anyway. So why not just pay up front and get it done?

Brown vs. Black: Contrary to what general opinion or even what your mama says, these foundational colors are NOT meant to be mixed. It's a travesty to wear brown shoes and a black bag or belt, or any such variation.

THE CLASSIC WEEKEND EVENT GUIDE

Now, let's get onto the real business. (And it's always best to be positive, right?)

DO's

Wrist Watch: Everyone -- men, women, children and babies -- needs an amazing classy watch to complete any outfit.

Smart Phone: It simply is unattractive to have a phone that has no internet or text capability. We live in a technology age. Without proper communications you are doomed to stay behind the times and exempt from today's prosperity.

Clothing Essentials: In every closet should hang at least one amazing black suit, one expensive pair of black dress shoes/pumps, two crisp designer white shirts, one camel belt and matching shoes (remember, no mixing black and brown), and a nice overnight duffle bag for traveling.

Winning Colors: If you have questionable fashion judgment, you're always safe wearing these colors: gray, tan, cream, black and, yes, white.

As always, there are exceptions to every rule but these never change. But if they do, I'll know first, so keep up with me!

The 72nd Annual Magic City Classic Ambassador

ICE CUBE born O'Shea Jackson on June 15, 1969 is an American hip hop artist, record producer, actor, screenwriter, film producer, and director. He began his career as a member of the hip-hop group C.I.A. and later joined N.W.A. After leaving N.W.A. in December 1989, he built a successful solo career in music, and also as a writer, director, actor and producer in cinema. Additionally, he has served as one of the producers of the Showtime television series Barbershop and the TBS series Are We There Yet?, both of which are based upon films in which he portrayed the lead character.

Cube is noted as a proficient lyricist and storyteller and is regarded as a brutally honest rapper; his lyrics are often political and he is considered one of the founding artists in gangsta rap. He was ranked #8 on MTV's list of the 10 Greatest MCs of All Time.

Following his role as 'Doughboy' in Boyz n the Hood, in 1992 he starred alongside Ice-T, and Bill Paxton in Walter Hill's action film, Trespass, and then in The Glass Shield.

Ice Cube starred in the commercially successful movie Barbershop, as well as All About the Benjamins. In 2004, he appeared in Barbershop 2: Back in Business, and Torque; in 2005 he starred in the action movie XXX: State of the Union, as well as the family comedies Are We There Yet? and Are We Done Yet?, co-starring Nia Long.

THE CLASSIC WEEKEND EVENT GUIDE

This Year's Shuttle System is Once Again Free!

Spectators can once again enjoy a FREE shuttle ride, to and from Legion Field, from 1 of 3 convenient locations on the day of the game. Whether you are going straight to the game or attending the parade in the morning, the shuttle is the easiest way to get you to the game AND you don't have to fight the game day traffic downtown. Shuttles will pick you up at the shuttle stop and take you directly to Legion Field.

After the game, return to the drop off point at Legion Field (located on the east side of the stadium) and the buses will be staged and clearly marked, ready to take you back to your vehicle.

Gameday Management Group, a professional transportation management company, has been hired to facilitate the shuttle & transportation plan for this year's game.

Shuttle Stops, Times & Locations are Listed Below:

SHUTTLE HOURS HAVE BEEN EXTENDED UNTIL 10:30PM TO ACCOMMODATE THE POST-GAME CONCERT FANS

Birmingham Crossplex

Formerly called the AL State Fairgrounds

Looking to get to the game early? Not interested in attending the morning parade downtown? Then this is your best option for parking and shuttle transportation. Avoid all the downtown traffic!
